

COLLEGE OF EDUCATION

The College of Education at The University of Texas at Arlington is a leader in preparing education professionals who make a difference in communities across Texas and nationwide. Faculty and staff believe that a quality education changes lives and that every child should have access to effective and evidence-based instruction, outstanding educational support, and sound leadership.

The college seeks to provide students with unique experiences built on high standards, to encourage them to think critically and creatively, and to instill in them a lifetime commitment to learning and service to their communities. Undergraduate and graduate degrees are offered through the Department of Teacher and Administrator Preparation and the Department of Higher Education, Adult Learning, and Organizational Studies. Students may also pursue professional teacher, principal, administrator, and other certifications.

UTA is fully accredited by the Commission on Colleges of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools College of Education and the Texas Education Agency.

FAST FACTS

- Graduates earned more than 6,500 education certifications between 2014 and 2022.
- Since 2016, 100% of College of Education graduates seeking a job were employed by a school district, according "Performance Analysis for Colleges of Education" survey data.
- U.S. News & World Report ranked the college's online graduate programs No. 15 overall and No. 5 for veterans in 2025.
- The College of Education was named one of the nation's top teacher prep programs in Start Here to Become a Teacher, a book from the National Council on Teacher Quality.
- 90% of graduates are satisfactorily prepared or better, according to the Texas Education Agency's Teacher Preparation Effectiveness Survey: First-Year Teachers.

DISCOVER MORE ABOUT COED

